Dr. Frazier's Root Bitters.

Frazier's Root Bitters are not a dram-shop whisky beverage, but are strictly medicinal in every sense. They act strongly upon the liver and kidneys, keep the bowels open and regular, make the weak strong, heal the lungs, build up the nerves and cleanse the blood and system of every impurity.

For dizziness, rush of blood to the head tending to apoplexy, dyspepsia, fever and ague, dropsy, pimples and blotches, scrofulous humors and sores, tetter, ring worm, white swelling, erysipelas, sore eyes and for young men suffering from weakness or debility caused from imprudence, and to females in delicate health, Frazier's Root Bitters are especially recommended.

Dr. Frazier: I have used two bottles of your Root Bitters for dyspepsia, dizziness, weakness and kidney disease, and they did me more good than the doctors and all the medicine I ever used. From the first dose I took I began to mend, and I am now in perfect health, and feel as well as I ever did. I consider your medicine one of the greatest blessings.

PILES! PILES! PILES!

A Sure Cure Found at Last—No One Need Suffer!

A sure cure for blind, bleeding, itching and ulcerated piles has been discovered by Dr. William, (an Indian remedy,) called Dr. Williams' Indian Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of twenty-five or thirty years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. Lotions, instruments and electricities do more harm than good. Williams' Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching, (particularly at night after getting warm in bed,) acts as a poultice, gives instant and painless relief, and is prepared only for piles, itching of the private parts, and nothing else.

Read what the Hon. J. M. Coffinberry, of Cleveland, says about Dr. Williams' Pile Ointment; I have used scores of pile cures, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave me such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. Williams' Indian Ointment.

For sale by George T. Wood or mailed on receipt of price, $1.

Skin Diseases Cured

By DR. FRAZIER'S MAGIC OINTMENT. Cures as if by magic, pimples, black head or grubs, blotches and eruptions on the face, leaving the skin clear, healthy and beautiful. Also cures itch, barber's itch, salt rheum, tetter, ringworm, scald head, chapped hands, sore nipples, sore lips, old obstinate ulcers and sores, &c.

SKIN DISEASE.

F. Drake, Esq., Cleveland, O., suffered beyond all description from a skin disease which appeared on his hands, head and face, and nearly destroyed his eyes. The most careful doctoring failed to help him, and after all had failed he used Dr. Frazier's Magic Ointment and was cured by a few applications.

The first and positive cure for skin diseases ever discovered.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, fifty cents

THE MISSISSIPPI.

News of a Veteran Navigator on Its Improvement.

Editor Vicksburg Herald: Please allow me through the columns of your paper, to address a few words to the planters of the Mississippi Valley.

These people have been my trusted friends and patrons for more than half a century through all the years of peace, war and pestilence; and in prosperity and adversity alike they have ever manifested a feeling of friendship and earnest good will toward me, the remembrance of which I shall ever cherish with the kindest emotions, and with a pleasurable pride that, during my life time, I have at least been esteemed a worthy object of so royal a people's regard.

With me friendship is no superficial sentiment, expressed in meaningless words from the lips of the man who knows little else of you than name. But it is an honest impulse, resulting from personal predilections, as interested suggested by the kindest motives, and a feeling inspired by the most congenial and intimate association. The impulse, my friends in the Valley know, has ever been the tenor of my conduct in respect to them and their varied interests, and in this spirit do I now address them.

To them permit me to say: My friends, your fate is indeed a hard one. In your convention your members of congress declared to you in unmistakable language that they could neither vote for or entertain any resolution as to the improvement of the Mississippi river, calculated to benefit you, unless the same should meet the approval of the Mississippi River Convention.

Neither could such resolution or suggestion be submitted to the action of congress unless approved by the Mississippi River Commission; then again, your representatives in congress, a few days since, had the assurance to forward deliberate instructions to the Mississippi legislature positively commanding them to refuse peremptorily to vote for any and all schemes looking to the adoption of the outlet system.

Now, why not let the jetty system stand upon its own intrinsic merits, if it has any, and at the same time give to the "Cowdon plan" a fair and impartial hearing before the public in all its application thereto? But then the members of the River Commission before a Congressional Committee the other day, informed you and the country at large, that an outlet through Lake Borgne would work untold disaster to the county situated along the banks, as it would create a general overflow in that region.

Now will Major Harrod please exhibit to the thinking and observing people of the valley the map showing the particular section that would be submerged in the successful completion of the outlet indicated? As for myself, I can see nothing to be affected by it save Lake Borgne itself, which is only an arm of the Gulf of Mexico. With Captain Eads and his fatal and ruinous applications of "science" rests the responsibility of choking up the mouth of the Father of Waters.

His mattresses, piles, rocks and other obstructions have succeeded most effectually, in closing up the natural outlet of the Mississippi, so that now the only remedy suggested by the plain unvarnished dictates of common sense for the escape of this great body of water, without detriment to the country, is to give it free exit through Lake Borgne, thus relieving the Valley and improving navigation accordingly.

Unless this done it will be forced to seek some other outlet, and the result will be that it will burst over its banks and rushing blind over the land, devastate the whole country within its reach, while the ruined population will be compelled to flee to the hills for that protection which the policy of credulence has robbed them of at home.

Just now the A chafalaya is the only outlet the Mississippi has to assist its miserable sluggish month, and even this one is too small for the necessary requirements of its discharging process. I do not hesitate to say that the present trouble from high water below and above and everywhere, should be laid at the door of the Seven Wise Men that call themselves the Mississippi River Commission, and their grand high priest, Mr. Eads.

The miserable little funnel which these gentlemen claim to be 600 feet wide and 26 feet deep is not as large as the Kanawha river when it is full, and yet, muzzled as it is expected to carry off the waters of one of the wildest and biggest and grandest rivers in the world.

Just now there can be no relief from the packets. The greatest suffering is back in the region where the steam boats can not reach. The desolation witnessed by me on the lower coast coming up last trip beggars description. I have seen whole droves of cattle huddled together on portions of levees so insignificant that one would expect to see them swept away with every passing wave.

On that trip I saw hundreds of people whose every effort was absolutely necessary to the protection of their own lives, and the abandonment of everything else. They had lost, and were satisfied to lose everything in the world if their lives were spared them.

The crevasses in Point Coupe are by no means equal to the emergency and they are unable to materially lessen the rise of the water below. The mouth of the river is gagged with a hundred obstructions, and there is no hope for the poor planter of the Valley.

Let the people take this matter in their own hands, prosecute the subject to the bitter end, and give those who would delude them into the false theories of a most defective science no quarter, no countenance, and naught save the contempt they deserve.

T. P. LEATHERS.

TERRIBLE SCENES.

The Flooded South as Seen by One Eye Witness.

Cleveland Herald.

Mr. J. H. Bradlee, of this city, returned yesterday from a two months' trip through the flooded districts of the South. "People up here have no idea of the terrible state of things," said he. "Such sights and suffering of man and beast beggars description. On Saturday morning I left Little Rock by rail to Madison, forty miles from Memphis. We were eleven hours going a hundred miles, in many places the water covering the track for miles. At Madison we took the steamer Rene McCready down the St. Francis to the Mississippi and up to Memphis. Here the water spread out nearly sixty miles wide, on an average of fifteen feet deep, and in many places much deeper. In the midst of these waters were villages and farms almost deserted by all except the live stock. We saw in one place a narrow strip of land about a hundred yards long and six to fifteen feet wide. This was crowded with sheep and cattle and hogs crazy with suffering, devouring each other like ferocious beasts. Where there was any chance of keeping stock on land it was rapidly dying of buffalo mits. We saw houses where the water reached above the second floor. From one of these two men in a dugout or small boat came out and picked up a dead animal that floated on the water and carried it back to the starving inmates of the houses. On a raft in a small inlet we saw sixteen mules and started to take them aboard, but found them raving so fearfully and acting like mania: brutes that we dared not go near. Several hogs that were sitting on a log in the midst of the water left it and swam up to our boat crying almost like a human. Such screams I never want to hear again. As we left them they would swim back to the stump. From one of the houses a man came out with a letter for Memphis. He said his wife had just died of starvation, and for heaven's sake to send him help."

Capital and Labor.

The New York Herald: "The problem of reconciling the two interests has puzzled the wisest statesmanship and baffled the highest philanthropy. It has been discussed by the novelist, the political economist, the press and the pulpit, by congresses and by parliaments, but unfortunately the end seems no nearer than ever. In England, however, which has been a greater sufferer from strikes than perhaps any country in the world, more substantial progress has been made toward a reasonable understanding on the subject than among us. There nearly all the great trades and industries are represented by boards of arbitration which are made up of men interested in their well-being, who thoroughly understand the rights and duties of all concerned. These bodies are not partial, one-sided organizations. The capitalist is represented as well as the workman. In the event of disputes books are examined, arguments are made one side and on the other, and the decision of the umpire, who is never concerned in the business, is necessary always accepted as final. Every possible phase of the situation by these tribunals—the profits of business, its possible future and every other detail affecting the relations and interests of employer and employe. As a result of this system strikes are now of infrequent occurrence in England. Millions of dollars have been saved to the workmen and untold suffering has been averted. The history of strikes shows that the burden nearly always has fallen on the shoulders of labor. The great strike of the operative engineers in England in 1850-52 cost the workmen's societies more than two hundred thousand dollars and the loss of wages for three months. The strike of the London building trades in 1860 for a reduction of the hours of labor entailed a loss of one hundred and fifteen thousand dollars for support of the needy and a sacrifice in wages of ten times that sum. The strike of the Yorkshire coal miners, two years before resulted in a loss of half a million dollars and at the end the men went to work at their old wages. Our own experience is all, unhappily, in the line of these melancholy precedents. There have been innumerable strikes in the coal mines of Pennsylvania and in the cotton mills of New England, but so far as the workman is concerned the story is the same—disaster and defeat.

In the interest of all parties it is to be hoped that employers and employed will be able to see their way clear toward the establishment of the English arbitration system here. There is no necessary reason in their relations why there should be misunderstanding between the two classes. Their interests are more identical here than in any other country of the world. More than half the great capitalists of this country were themselves workmen. And the large majority of the honest, sober, hard-working tradesmen and mechanics of to-day hope at no distant time to fight their way into the ranks of capitalists. But they cannot do it by listening to the vapors of demagogues and communists who do not understand the first principles of American law, justice or manhood.

Edward Gray, colored, is under arrest at Dallas, Texas, for outraging an eighteen-year-old white girl.

The three hundred striking workmen at the Diebold Safe Works, Canton, will resume work at their old figures.

Judge J. J. Lyons, editor of the New Issue at Gilmer, Texas, was found shot dead in his private office. A printer named Ashley is suspected of the crime.

It is reported that old Bender was captured on a raft at the St. Louis wharf. It will be remembered that the press of the whole country was filled with the accounts of murders committed by this man and his daughter Kate. Since Bender has been identified by many of those who knew him best.

The Secretary of War states that, on the 2d inst., he was officially informed that all American citizens held as prisoners in Ireland had been released, except three, and that since that date further information has reached him that O'Conner, Hart, Welsh, Dalton and White are now in prison. Negotiations are still being conducted, with the view to release the remaining prisoners, and with hope of success.

The body of Jesse James still lies in its plain coffin at the undertaker's room at St. Joseph, Mo. Mrs. Samuels and Mrs. James are at the hotel awaiting the delivery of the dead, and the authorities are awaiting word from the Governor. The body will probably be given to the two women and taken to Clay county for burial. The sensation of the day is the story that Frank James, with friends, are near town, and the jail is closely guarded in consequence.

Relative Value of Labor.

Courier-Journal.

The American operative works sixty hours a week and the British operative fifty-six hours. If they both worked the same number of hours the British operative would get more than the American. As it is, the Briton has the advantage of the American every time in the cheapness of his food and clothing.

Almost every child knows how largely England purchases of our wheat and other cereals, and paying $18 to $20 per ton freight on wheat from California to her ports for all that they can obtain freight capacity for many years, and yet we have the fact given to us that the great staff of life costs more in Massachusetts than in England. The increased cost of living in this country has led the Massachusetts operative to demand an advance in their wages. Wages have not advanced with advancing prices. They have, on the contrary, been reduced. The employer in a protected industry pays no more wages than he is compelled to. He does not establish "wages," import "pauper labor" from abroad and cut down wages to make his operative rich and happy. He does that for himself and nobody else.

Ghost-Wolf.

Maysville's "ghost-wolf" was seen again on Third street last night. It was hotly pursued by boys with dogs, but disappeared as mysteriously as on a former occasion. It is described as larger than a dog, gaunt in appearance, perfectly white and goes at a jumping gait. Its appearance here has created much sensation. It is believed to be the same animal seen in East Maysville about a year ago.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Mr. Robert Liter, of Augusta, is so sick, little hope is entertained of his recovery.

Mr Harry Giovanoli of the Danville Ky., Advocate, is visiting friends in this city.

At last accounts Dr. John A. Mitchel was getting along well and there was no reason for fear of serious results from his wound.

The following are from the Bracken Chronicle:

Mrs. Wood and daughter, Miss Mollie Ward, Washington, Mason county, are visiting the family of W. J. Rankins.

Misses Emma and Lena Means, of Maysville, were the guests of Misses Leona and Sammie Reese, this city, this week.

Mr. Fred. Troxell, the popular baker and confectioner, of Maysville, was down last Sunday shaking hands with his old acquaintances.

Mr. H. J. Evans, of Maysville, contractor on the Maysville and Big Sandy Railroad, moved his family to this city last week. He says he has orders to work eighty men in the work of construction at this point.

Weather For April.

The following are Prof. Vennor's predictions for the remainder of this month: Snow-flurries probable about 6th and 7th. Cool and unsettled weather may occur again, with cool nights and frosts in some sections.

General signs of an advanced season about the 8th of April.

On the 9th, Easter Sunday, 10th and 11th, fine warm and dry weather, with every prospect of speedy opening of navigation in northern sections.

A colder wind may set in for a day or two about the 12th.

There are indications of periods of unusual heat, which will cause rapid and premature advance of vegetation.

Late and severe frosts are probable in the south and south-western sections of the United States, and in portions of Canada.

April will likely be more of a Spring or early Summer month than May.

THE Ashland Independent says: James Hefflin will be re-appointed deputy under Marshal Auxier, and it is understood will be kept in this district. We hope this will be done, as Mr. Hefflin is thoroughly acquainted with this territory, and can do more effective work than he would be able to do in a part of the state new to him.

We publish the following letter of the olden time, to show how communication was carried on between this section and east Tennessee.

BEND OF CHUCKY, JEFFERSON CO., EAST TENNESSEE, Sept. 16, 1828.

Mr. Richard H. Lee, of Maysville—Dear Sir: I consign to you the carriage and horses and driver, John Glasswell, which I got from you to bring me and my family to Tennessee. He has behaved well, been steady, sober, industrious and faithful in the discharge of his duty.

Yours, with much respect,

E. B. ANDERSON.

The above letter was found among the papers of the late S. B. Nicholson, Esq., and was probably preserved by John Glasswell, a colored man, who formerly lived at the corner of Limestone and second streets, and was emancipated by Wm. V. Drake at the term of the Mason circuit court, held in July, 1827. His wife, Nancy Glasswell, was emancipated by Chauncy B. Shepherd in 1826.

The following marriage licenses have been issued in Brown county, Ohio, since our last report:

J. H. Shelton and Elen Dick.
W. M. Brown and Annie Kindle.
Henry Williams and Annie Withers.

A PARTY of collectors started out yesterday in search of fossils for the Library collection. The first find was a white-alley. It was immediately recognized by one of the party, from peculiar marks as "the original white-alley" used by Craddock and Hixson, over a century ago, as they whiled away their time in the then wilderness of Kentucky. It was lost on Sugar Loaf, during the excitement caused by the arrival of the canoe, bearing Simon Butler and Thomas Williams, in the mouth of Limestone Creek. It has been properly labeled and may be seen in the Library collection.

LEWIS VANDER, Proprietor.

GUITEAU'S FIT OF GENEROSITY.

Giving Mr. Scoville a Portion of the Money Received From Selling his Assassination Suit.

Mr. Reed went first to Guiteau's cell to ascertain if he would see his brother-in-law from whom he has been somewhat estranged of late. The assassin at first declined to accord him an interview and spoke in the most denunciatory terms of him. He was finally persuaded that it would be better for his interests to have a talk with Mr. Scoville, as the latter wanted to leave the city in a few days and probably would not return till the court in banc met, the third Monday of this month. Guiteau greeted Mr. Scoville in a surly, careless manner, and as soon as the conversation was begun he upbraided him for not being more discreet in talking about a commutation of sentence.

"I want you to understand, Scoville," said Guiteau, "that I don't want my sentence commuted to sentence for life. If Arthur can't give me a free, full pardon, I don't want any favors from him. I don't want any more interference in this matter. When I want a pardon I shall send word to the President, and at the same time present him with a copy of the new edition of my book; that will fix it." He then asked if anything definite had been learned regarding the intentions of Gen. Butler or Messrs. Merrick and Cook. When told that it was doubtful if either could attend to his case he said he said that it did not matter much, and that he would sooner attend to his own affairs. Then in a generous spirit he called Mr. Scoville aside, and, placing one hundred and twenty-five dollars in his hand, he said:

"Here is a part of the money that I received from the sale of my old clothes. You have been pretty kind to me after all and I guess you need some money."

Mr. Scoville and his client conversed in a low tone for several minutes and when they concluded Guiteau smilingly announced that he had buried the hatchet and didn't intend to quarrel with his friends any more, "although," he added, "Scoville should not have said that I should be hung or my sentence commuted to imprisonment for life."

Guiteau seemed very anxious to ascertain the progress that was being made with his book, stating that he had frequent requests for copies from visitors to his cell, and he concluded the interview by charging Mr. Scoville to hurry up the matter, in order, as he said, "that the receipts might be increased."

Mr. Scoville seemed much affected at the action of the prisoner towards him and said to Mr. Reed, while crossing the common in the direction of Lincoln Park: "I can't make up my mind to abandon Guiteau's case, for I am satisfied that he will not be able to secure any one to urge his case if you and I leave."

He was asked if anything remained to be done with the bill of exceptions, and replied that as far as he knew it was in good condition for presentment to the court in banc. He said also that District Attorney Corkhill had proposed to him to have the argument begin the second Monday of the term, but he had not yet been able to agree to a date.

Pleuro-pneumonia has broken out in Kent, England.

From three to four bushels of rye is enough seed for an acre.

The "lung plague" was known in the days of Aristotle 380 years B. C.

Spring rye should be sown as early in spring as the land can be well worked.

Sheep kept clean are not affected by scab except it be communicated to them by scabby sheep.

One variety of wheat, oats, rye, barley and buckwheat is easier managed than several, and gives better satisfaction.

One early and one late variety of cucumber and squash can be raised with advantage without much danger of mixing, as the time of blossoming is different.

Two children, John Donnigan and Louise Bolunke, living at 9 James street, New York, were killed by the fall of a wall against which a contractor had piled a quantity of bricks. He was arrested on a charge of criminal carelessness.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has rendered an opinion in favor of the State against the Standard Oil Company for $33,000 in back taxes. The original claim was $3,145,000, which was reduced by agreement to $796,000 a short time before the trial was begun.

BATCHELDER'S

Ventilated Egg Case.

Patented February 15, 1881.

Indispensable to Merchants Shippers And Producers.

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These Trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candled, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case, without rehandling.

For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.

The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, adding, or breakage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.

PRICES IN CHICAGO.

Shipper's No. 1, 30 doz. Case with Fillers complete.....65 Cents.
Farmer's No. 1, 18 doz. Case with Fillers complete.....55 Cents.
Cardboard Fillers for refilling 20 Cents.
15 per cent. discount on lots of 100 cases.
Batchelder's Egg Tester, 1 sitting 6 doz. at once, saves to buyers many times its cost each season. Price $3.00.

By special arrangements made by the manufacturers of this case most Railroads will receive them as fourth class freight.

The 18 dozen case made especially for Farmers' use, sent to any address by express, with out nailing, with full directions for setting up, on receipt of 50 cents. Every Farmer and consumer should have one of these cases, it will save its cost every month. Agents wanted in every county. Address,
